A HOUSE BLESSING.

"The Beauty of the house is Order:
The Blessing of the house is Contentment:
The Glory of the house is Hospitality:
The Crown of the house is Godliness."

The bar of the saloon, the bar of the court, and the bars of the jail are very closely related.

Don't judge a man by his clothes God made one and the tailor made the other. Don't judge a man by his family, for Cain belonged to a good family. Don't judge a man by his failure in life, for many a man fails because he is to succeed. Don't judge a man by the house he lives in, for the lizard and the rat often inhabit the grander structure. When a man dies they who survive him ask what property there is left behind; the angel who bends over the dying man asks what good deeds he has sent before him.

Did you ever know a woman to regret that she knew how to do exquisitely find needle work or plain sewing, to bake light, wholesome bread, or delicious pies or cakes? Did you ever know one who was ashamed of her skill in pickling and preserving, or who was unwilling to admit that she could arrange a table, order a course dinner, and if need be, do the cooking herself? No, indeed, but many a woman has spent years in trying to acquire the knowledge of the household affairs of which she should have been mistress before she was fairly in long dresses. The mother who fails to instruct her daughter in these branches defrauds her of woman's best rights, the right to a knowledge of how to make a home. Perhaps only a home for herself, but, oh, how pretty and pleasant it can be if the tact, the skill, the grace of a trained hand and eye and taste are there to bring it into perfect symmetry.

Woman, can't you see? You caught your husband with honey and you cannot hold him with vinegar. The outside of a house is the only side which in truth belongs to a hen pecked husband. They take to the outside so speedily when there is unpleasantness within, that any woman with only a little thought and observation may know what will come of trying to train a husband as she would a fractious school boy. Whatever he may be, for the home sake, she is obliged to keep sweet. We have seen women who apparently enjoyed scolding their husbands in the presence of others, and we have seen mothers who indiscreetly punish their children before visitors, thus humiliating the dear wayward ones and making them feel that their reputations were so damaged that there was no use in trying to be good. But such women are not the mistresses of those homes where the household machinery glides on with noiseless ease, without force or effect seeming to be required to move it along. They cannot create the sunny, cheerful fireside that men love better than all the world beside, and the memory of which children tenderly cling to as long as life lasts.

HONOR THY MOTHER.

Honor the dear old mother. Time has scattered the snowy flakes upon her brow, plowed deep furrows on her cheek, but is she not beautiful now? The lips are thin and shrunk, but those are the lips that have kissed away many a hot tear from the childish cheek, and they are the sweetest lips in the world. The eye is dim, yet it glows with soft radiance of holy love that can never fade. Oh yes; yes she is a dear old mother. The sands of time are nearly run out, but feeble as she is, she will go farther and reach down lower for you than any other on earth. You cannot walk into a midnight where she cannot see you; you cannot enter a prison where bars will keep her out, you can never mount a scaffold too high for her to reach and bless you with her deathless love. When the world shall despise and forsake you, when it leaves you by the wayside to die unnoticed, the dear old mother will gather you in her feeble old arms and carry you home and tell you of all your virtues until you almost forget that your soul is disfigured by vice. Love her tenderly and cheer her declining years with holy devotion.

derly and cheer her declining years with holy devotion.

IS YOUR HOME COSY?

There are many so-called homes that do not deserve the name at all. Home means comfort, but when we have it fixed up so elaborately that we must sit in the garret or the back yard to geniously enjoy ourselves, then it is high time we made a change and turned out the too-good-to-use articles and substitute for them real homely things that we could enjoy every day of the year and every moment of the day.

Men like pretty home-makers, no mistake there. They can appreciate beauty as well as the next one, but they want that beauty to be of an order that appeals to their comfort. Of what use are cushions so elaborately embroidered that no head can rest on them? What sense is there in easy chairs of such rich material that they are quite the reverse of the name given them? Is there any satisfaction in a room the furnishings of which cost hundreds of dollars, when it is only open at rare intervals, when the owner, perhaps, sits by the kitchen fire or in some dingy sitting room, where he can put his feet on the fender if he wants to, can smoke, and as a great indulgence, tilt back his chair?

Let the sunshine into the gloomy rooms, have a couch to lie on, a piano to play on; in fact, a home to live in, one wherein a sense of hospitality and good cheer exudes from the very tables and chairs, instead of a mausoleum of gloomy elegance, wherein every thing is for show and nothing to be used.
